February 2023

Coronation Year

We are now in a Coronation year! The cover photograph from the New Buckenham Archive shows Tofts shop, later Lovells, decked out for Queen Elizabeth's Coronation in June 1953. The monochrome picture doesn't do justice to the colourful display of posters and bunting which would have been remarkable during the austerity after the war. Other village photographs show houses decorated and flags across the street.

Cinderella

There's no better way to start any festive season than with a visit to the panto, and with their own special bit of Bibbidi-Bobbido-Boo the New Buckenham Players didn't disappoint with their fun-filled presentation of Cinderella in early December.

It was obvious from the start that much work had been undertaken to get us all into the village Christmas spirit that we had missed over the last few years. With a cast both young and old, and lots of new faces, it was great to see them all come together with such aplomb whilst obviously enjoying the opportunity to entertain. How super to see so many children getting involved!

There was lots of audience participation; bangs, boos and hisses, sing-alongs, choc treats and a few disappointed 'size 6 feet'. With so much to enjoy from the great over the top performances that make panto all the fun it should be, and along with wonderful costumes and incredible scenery, it all added up to make a great night.

Congratulations to all involved. It was truly a wonderful team effort from cast, crew and all those who give of their time so willingly to support. So glad to see the panto back in the village calendar. We look forward to next year.

Thank you, Players!

Maria Lloyd

Cinderella, too

It's behind you - oh no it isn't, oh yes it is!!!

Sadly the New Buckenham Players' production of Cinderella is now some way behind us but has definitely left its audiences with many happy memories of a thoroughly enjoyable evening. What a privilege it was to celebrate the start of December with the return of one of the highlights of New Buckenham's annual calendar after an absence of two years. And oh how we missed it! Cinderella, which had all the ingredients of a fantastic panto with something for everyone, played to four packed houses with plenty of laughter, clapping, cheering, singing and the odd bit of groaning! The professionalism of the cast and crew, on stage and behind the scenes, was matched by the creators of the wonderful scenery and costumes, the musicians and sound department, the prompt and those working front of house, on the raffle and in the bar. The youngsters in the cast certainly enhanced the production and I know that having youngsters on stage involves having chaperones and lots of rules and regulations so well done to everyone who embraced this.

May I finish with a huge thank you to everyone involved in the production? Given that the Christmas production takes place on the first weekend of December, it's just ten months until the next one! Oh yes it is!!!

William Alan Jones

Alan died on 25th November 2022 after a stay in hospital. Born on 19th June 1944, he was brought up in Treherbert, Rhondda and went to the local grammar school. The family moved away later and, with training in accountancy, Alan found work in the greater London area. He became a manager at Heathrow airport sorting out the 'duty free' to go in aeroplanes and ships, often travelling abroad. When he met Marlene they ran an off-licence together in Putney.

Alan and Marlene eventually settled in New Buckenham, running Kings Stores where Angel Cakes is now. The business didn't do well and his sight was failing so following Marlene's unexpected death in 1990 he moved into No 1 Almshouse a couple of years later.

In later life his constant companions were his guide dogs Jeeves, Katie and Andy. These enabled him, after a fashion, to walk the village and attend social events despite sometimes getting lost. Without his last dog Alan became more withdrawn but in earlier times he was usually at the Kings Head on a Saturday morning, occupying 'compost corner' with a collection of like-minded friends. He particularly enjoyed attending village funerals although regretted the absence of professional wailing mourners as he had experienced in his Welsh childhood.

Alan's abiding passion was the varying fortunes of the Welsh Rugby Union team and he placed the Welsh flag over his washing line every time they played against England. He particularly liked his (English) neighbours to be with him for the televised match. Drink was taken and each other's countries were insulted. His many visitors kept him well informed about the village but he wasn't easy company; his cantankerous, contrary nature often got the better of him while at other times he could be kind and generous.

Alan's funeral was held on 23rd December at St. Martin's Church. He had planned every detail including the draped Welsh flag, tolling bell and refreshingly short service.

Contributions from Vicky Cooper, Charles Oxley and Roger Turner

The Trustees of the William Barber Charity wish to express their sadness at the death of Alan, who was a long-term resident of the Almshouses.

News from the Pews

Christmas Services: Thank you to all who came and shared our Christmas services. We were really pleased to welcome a good number to Christingle, Christmas Eve and Christmas morning, and together with the amazing efforts of the Carols on the Green team we have sent a donation of £200 to the Children's Society. Thanks also to everyone who baked, cleaned, decorated, read, sang and played over the weeks, and to Clive for the beautiful tree.

Forthcoming Events: Coffeemates! will start up again in the spring, but the book stall is open every day from 10am–4pm. Hopefully Village&Vestry, the group that helps with fundraising to keep the building standing and maintained, will have some exciting events to tell you about soon.

Services: Just as money is always a problem in the church, so is manpower. We are blessed to have Revd Sarah with us now, but we will also be joining forces with the other churches in the group more often, so keep an eye on the notices.

We have plans to have Lilies for Easter again this year, with the quiet hour from 2pm–3pm on Good Friday to collect them and listen to some music and readings. More details next month.

Good Companions

Thirty members sat down for our three-course lunch on Wednesday 7th December, and this was enjoyed by all! After lunch, we were again entertained by the excellent Alan Avery. A surprise visit from Father Christmas at the end of the afternoon rounded off a very good day. We wish all those who were unable to attend due to illness a very speedy recovery!

The first meeting of 2023 will be on Thursday 16th February at 2:30pm in the Village Hall.

Bleak Future for the Black Poplar?

Many people will be aware that the Black Poplar tree is rare, but how rare is rare? Are there really only TWO of them in the whole of Norfolk?

A shocking article in the EDP at the beginning of January made this claim:

'The Black Poplar has the dubious honour of being the UK's most endangered native tree. ... The species has been in deep decline since the 1850s, with just 7,000 thought to be growing in Britain, of which only 600 are female trees. Conservationists have, identified trees at Hardwick and Tibenham as being the only two examples left in Norfolk.'

That's odd because we have known for years about the spectacular specimen on a field up Cuffer Lane to one side to the Tas Valley Way. Investigation was in order!

It was the Otter Trust which had done nationwide surveys and, using cuttings, is planning to plant more than 50 to ensure the survival of the species. Their campaign is about to go live. The man responsible for it is Ben Grief, the Director of Conservation and Education. He'd had scores of emails after the article. He was furious.

'The EDP got it completely wrong. The article should say that the two trees mentioned at Tibenham and Hardwick are the only two individuals of very rare clones 42 and 45.

I am well aware that there are more, as I personally visited all of them and took samples for DNA testing and cuttings for planting. There are 78 veteran BPs in Norfolk (many more if you include the ones pumped out by the county council in the 90s - although these are birth male clones 25 and 28 - the commonest). Your tree is female clone 23 - once thought to be the only female in the county - my work had actually discovered 5 more 23s across the county.

Norfolk has 6 genetically distinct trees - the vast majority being male 25 and 28, female 23, and now male 42 and 45 and a new individual that I discovered which is yet to be allocated an identification number.

The NB tree is a beautiful specimen.'

And as if this couldn't get more confusing: a dear friend who has been visiting NB from Northern Ireland for 30 years reports that he is aware of a Black Poplar near the Green in OLD Buckenham, and that there are reports of two new ones having been planted on 19th March 2018 to celebrate the Diamond Wedding Anniversary of Max and Pauline Bott. They had been raised by Pauline from cuttings taken from the old one on the green, which, to top it all, is said to be one of those rare and beautiful things... A FEMALE!

The lesson is: report and record all environmental issues you spot and, of course, don't blindly believe everything you read in the papers! (Except this, of course!)

Janet Trewin

Pot Luck

If you have even the smallest of gardens, or even none at all, but just windowsills indoors, it's not possible that you haven't got, lurking somewhere, an unwanted plant pot... or two. Well let's be honest, in my case, it's scores more than that. And where have you put them? In the shed? In a corner down the garden? Or maybe you just throw them in the bin? The problem is that they are almost always perfectly re-usable. They've had one flower in them and now you're chucking it away – the pot not the flower! Worse still, many of them are not recyclable. I decided to try to do my thing for the planet. I went online. I phoned garden centres. I got in the car and drove to Diss, to Attleborough, to Bressingham, to Norwich. Wherever I went they rejected them and then, perhaps by way of consolation, asked what colour were the pots? If they were black, they pointed out, they probably wouldn't be recyclable anyway. Other colours might be, but you'd have to check the codes on the side, and then you'd have to check the facilities of your particular district council. It's 2023! Surely there should be simpler solutions by now? I couldn't bear to look at the waste. And then I called in at the Thetford Garden Centre at Kilverstone, IP24 2RL. Write that postcode down. NOW! They explained how it works. You take all your pots and put them in a big container in the outdoor area. Anyone who wants to use them, takes them for free. When the container overflows a truck takes them away and grinds them down to make PLANT POTS. Hooray! I've done one small thing for the planet. And how much better my conscience feels. I hope you noted that postcode!

Exciting but dangerous

Please can you warn children that the old Second World War / Cold War observation post at the far eastern end of the common might be fun to explore, but is also potentially dangerous. It probably won't stop them climbing on it and in it, but hopefully they will never be alone when they do. Generations have used it, but as it gets older it gets more dangerous, so please have the conversation with your kids to keep them safe.

We have made Norfolk Wildlife Trust aware and hope they will take some action to make the structure safe.
